Brown, Grady Win in Greenbelt And Term Limits Are Opposed

by James Giese

While Greenbelt remained strongly Democratic in Tuesday’s Gubernatorial Election, two small differences in votes this time helped Larry Hogan achieve victory in the race for governor against Anthony Brown. Voter turnout was slightly down but only by two percent as compared with the 2010 Gubernatorial Election won by Governor Martin O’Malley. The missing 225 or so voters could have added to Brown’s totals. And about five percent of Greenbelt voters switched to the Republican side for this election, causing Brown to lose another 200 some votes. Still, Brown received 80 percent of the votes cast in Greenbelt.

If this minor change in voting pattern in Greenbelt had been statewide, Brown might still have won handily. But that was not the case. In other parts of the state, Brown received significantly less support than O’Malley did four years ago in beating former Governor Robert Ehrlich. As a result, Brown trailed Hogan statewide by almost five percent.

In the other closely contested local race, Greenbelters failed to support their local resident school board incumbent member Peggy Higgins. Instead, they strongly helped newcomer Lupi Grady win that race. Within school District 2 Grady won by a majority of eight percent of the votes cast. In Greenbelt, her margin of victory was even greater – 12 percent. Four years ago, Higgins carried Greenbelt with a winning margin of 31 percent. Apparently Grady’s gain of support from County Executive Rushern Baker and State Senator Paul Pinsky made the difference. Higgins did carry the two Center precincts, but lost in both Greenbelt East and West.

There were no surprises in any of the other election contests on this year’s ballot, with Greenbelters as a whole pretty much seeing eye-to-eye with county voters. For Congress, 86 percent of Greenbelters supported incumbent Steny Hoyer. In the county portion of his district, Hoyer got 84 percent, while district-wide he received 64 percent.

Maryland Comptroller Peter Franchot won re-election handily in Greenbelt with 85 percent of the vote, 88 percent in the county and 62 percent state-wide. Democrat Brian Frosh won his first term as attorney general for the state, winning 83 percent of the city vote, 87 percent of the county vote and 62 percent statewide.

All the Democrats for the Maryland General Assembly and for county offices won handily as did the incumbent judges up for voter approval. Rushern Baker, unopposed for county executive, achieved the most votes from Greenbelt of any candidate. Hoyer placed a close second. Four years ago it was Pinsky in first place. This year he came in a close third.

Of the three delegates elected, Tawanna Gaines again proved to be slightly more popular than the other two incumbents.

Ballot Questions

All but one ballot question won approval from the voters. The exception was Question J, which would have enabled the county executive and county councilmembers to serve three terms instead of two. This was

GHI Worksession Wrestles Over Possible Improvements

by Diane Oberg

The Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) met in a worksession on Thursday, October 30, with the Buildings Committee to discuss the committee’s recommendations and those of the Home Innovation Research Labs (HIRL). The main components of the Homes Improvement Program (HIP), such as doors, windows and heating systems, were not discussed at this worksession, which focused instead on improvements not covered by the corporation’s replacement reserves.

Any improvements that members vote to require would need to be paid for either by the individual member or by all the members, although the manner in which that will be done has not yet been determined. The Finance Committee is working to develop a financing plan.

As this was a worksession, not a board meeting, no votes were taken and no decisions made. Individual board members often indicated their perspectives, though not all board members commented on all items.

The board will discuss the recommendations and start to make decisions as to what to present to the membership at its regular board meetings sometime after November 6. Members can go to www.ghi.coop and sign up for E-news for weekly updates or watch for the GHI agendas in this newspaper.

Turner Completes Eight Years of County Service

by Kathleen Gallagher

It won’t be long before Greenbelt is welcoming a new member of the Prince George’s County Council named Turner, but at the October 27 meeting of the Greenbelt City Council it was all about County Councilmember Ingrid M. Turner. Prohibited by term limits from running for a third term, she is coming to the end of eight years of service to District 4, which includes Bowie, Glenn Dale, Greenbelt, Westchester Park and parts of Lanham-Seabrook and Upper Marlboro.

Mayor Emmett Jordan said the council had asked her to attend tonight’s meeting so they could thank her for all she had done for the district and especially for Greenbelt by way of advocacy, community service and assistance with funding over her term. He started to enumerate a list of services Turner had provided to the city that soon began to resemble a litany.

Included were county funding for renovation of the Greenbelt theater, the Greenbelt Community Foundation, the city’s Emergency Assistance Fund and the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education’s scholarship program. Jordan said Turner had also protected funding for the School Resource Officer Program and funding as well to support a juvenile delinquency counselor.

In addition to funding, Turner provided advocacy throughout the county for economic development and in Greenbelt for the construction and lighted ball fields for the new Greenbelt Middle School. She addressed two long-standing city problems in shepherding legislation to permit the city to rent its Community Center kitchen as a commercial kitchen and in achieving an increase in the city’s grant from Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission from $79,000 to nearly $250,000.

Letters to the Editor

An Unfair Practice

In the sample ballot for the November 4 election some elected positions are listed without reference to the candidates’ political party. That omission is deliberate in order to preserve the non-political nature of those positions, such as for a member of the Board of Education. Unfortunately, one of the candidates for the District 2 Board of Education position (Lupi Grady) has violated that practice by including reference to her political party in her full-page ad on page 16 of the October 30 issue of the Greenbelt News Review. The injection of politics into that race constitutes an unfair advantage because it implies to the voter that she/he should vote for that person solely because of party affiliation.

Sunday Bus?

Imagine my excitement when I read the October 30 article about possible WMATA Sunday bus service. The resumption of bus service in Greenbelt on Sunday would also enable Metro Access vans to once again enter Greenbelt to transport those of us who rely on them as our only means of going places and doing things on Sunday. Please consider this aspect of the service in your ongoing talks, and we pray for a favorable outcome.

Pumpkin Festival Composts!

Greenbelt Compost Co-op was pleased to be able to partner with the Greenbelt Pumpkin Festival to compost all of the leftover pumpkins from the festival. We followed the food hierarchy, which encourages human consumption first, then animal feed, then composting. With the help of volunteers, we were able to pick up some of the seeds and eyes-nose-mouths on Friday night, cook them up, and deliver them back to the Pumpkin Walk on Saturday night in the form of roasted seeds and pumpkin bread. Thanks to a local chicken farmer, we were able to deliver several buckets of “pumpkin guts”, which the chickens love to eat! Finally, thanks to the generosity of the Cheers.org Three Sisters Garden and nine local gardeners, we were able to compost over 110 pumpkins that were left behind on Sunday morning.

Our team of 27 volunteers included pick-up truck drivers (Deeda McInnes, Steve Skolnik, Craig Roberts and Erin Gatewood, Ben Fischler), seed roasters (Kim Knox, Katherine McElhenny, Amy Drew, Sara and Sieglinde Peterson), chicken farmers (Lil Becker and Tim Howe), gardener/composters (Maggie Cahalan, Jean Newcomb, Lucy Duff, Carolyn Davis, Ben Fischler, Katherine McElhenny, Beth Leamond, Paul Downs, Melissa Mackey, CC Lackaye, Martha Tomecek, Claude Aubert, and L’il Dan Celdran), and pumpkin schleppers (Beth Leamond, Nathan Sparks, Elena, Ian Dickens, and David Gonzalez).

Thanks to Melissa Ehrenreich and the entire Pumpkin Festival Committee for giving us an opportunity to be a part of the festival.

Advice for Scoopers

I am a member of GHI’s Companion Pet Committee but I am writing this letter as an individual. To help facilitate dog owners, the committee has placed “Scoop Your Dog Poop” signs. Attached to each sign is a plastic bag dispenser in which volunteers put plastic bags. These signs are usually within 30 feet of a garbage can so you can conveniently dispose of dog waste.

Unfortunately at several of our bag dispensers people are putting their bag filled with dog waste back in the bag dispensers. I find this very upsetting. Please do not put your dog waste in the bag dispensers. Put it in a garbage can.

Thank You.

Hello, GHI members,

It was really great to see so many neighbors at the October 30 GHI board worksession on the Homes Improvement Program (HIP) where the need for extensive remediation of all types of crawl spaces was summarized. There is an additional meeting this week where you can learn more, the Board of Directors regular meeting on Thursday, November 6, 7:30 p.m.

The Buildings Committee will be presenting its recommendations for HIP procedures and outreach strategy.

For additional meetings, check the following link regularly. You may find additional opportunities to contribute to our cooperative at ghi.coop/about-ghi/calendar.

Please note that a growing number of concerned members are collecting signatures on a petition to the board to delay HIP and to distinguish it from the needed improvements covered in the Replacement Reserve Program (RRP) in part due to the likely large costs of crawl space problems.

For those who would like a reminder of what is covered under the RRP, go to this pdf on the GHI web site and read page 6: ghi.coop/sites/default/files/TownHallMeeting_Final_20110123.pdf.

If you are also concerned about all the costs of what is not covered by the RRP, please read the petition at the link below, sign and share it with others who share your concerns (you can unsubscribe after one message). We also have paper petitions circulating, so if you see us out in Greenbelt, feel free to stop to chat and to sign (if you haven’t done so already at the link here): petitions.moveon.org/sign/greenbelt-homes-inc-ghi.

Hope to see you at a meeting again soon.

Golden Age Club

by Bunny Fitzgerald

The Golden Age Club had a very interesting trip on October 8. We rode a replica of a Civil War locomotive to Hanover Junction, Pa., then came down to Shaw’s Orchard to pick apples. It was a cold windy day as we rode on an open truck out to pick apples. We came home safely but tired with lots of apples and very proud of ourselves as “Active Seniors.”

The speaker on Wednesday, November 12 will be Hadlie Moer from the Toastmasters Club. November 19 will be Birthday Pot Luck Luncheon. No meeting on November 26 due to Thanksgiving.

Let’s keep Elaine Jones, Jim Cooley and Lillian O’Brien in our thoughts and prayers.

We can’t fight Mother Nature so let’s first enjoy Greenbelt’s beautiful fall colors.

Obituaries

Elizabeth (Betty) Polaschik

Elizabeth Rita (Betty) Polaschik, 95, of Greenbelt, died Sunday, October 26, 2014.

Born in Highland, Pa., she was the daughter of Peter and Eva (Czeglis) Martonis. Her parents emigrated from Lithuania to Northeastern Pennsylvania in the early 1900s. Her father was a coal miner in that anthracite coal region.

Elizabeth attended Foster Township High School in Free-land, Pa., and graduated as a reg-istered nurse from Sacred Heart Nursing School in Allentown, Pa., in 1940.

In 1945, she married her hometown sweetheart, Steve Polaschik, in Gulfport, Miss. They moved to Greenbelt in 1947 and lived here together until his death in 1986.

Mrs. Polaschik began her career as a registered nurse at Prince George's General Hospital in the late 1940s and worked there for over 30 years. For a number of years, she also worked as a nurse at the Greenbelt Nurs-ing Home. She was active with the Greenbelt Senior Center. Af-ter retirement, she continued to assist friends and family as a nurse for the rest of her life. Mrs. Polaschik was a longstanding member of St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church in Greenbelt. She was an avid gardener at her home in Greenbelt. Alongside her husband Steve, Mrs. Polaschik loved the Greenbelt com-munity and all the wonderful residents – whom she referred to as her neighbors.

Mrs. Polaschik was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Stephen Polaschik; a brother, Vincent Martonis; and six sisters, Veronika Martonis, Mary (Mar-tonis) Stefan, Helen (Martonis) Shigo, Anne (Martonis) Lowery, Evelyn (Martonis) Yaruso and Julia (Martonis) Miglas.

She is survived by her sis-ter, Victoria (Martonis) Soika of Manville, N.J.; daughters Rita Jean Williams and her husband Michael Williams of Hamilton, Va., and Elizabeth Ann Smith and her husband Norman Smith of Olney, Md.; four grandchildren, Kevin Peter Geren Williams of White Plains, N.Y.; Maria S. Wil-liams of Palm Coast, Fla.; Milisa Kristine Rollins and husband David Rollins of Adamstown, Md.; Kristopher Brandon Smith and wife Rachel Smith of New Market, Md.; three great grand-children and many nephews and nieces.

A funeral mass was held at St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church on November 1 followed by interment at Greenbelt City Cemetery.

Margaret Benjamin

A funeral for Margaret Benjamin was held at Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church on Saturday, No-vember 1, at 10 a.m. Born No-vember 7, 1947, in India, she was a member of Mowatt and a longtime resident of the Greenbelt area. People will remember her sitting on benches and visiting around Roosevelt Center and the Co-op. She died October 21, 2014, of cardiac arrest at Prince George's Hospital. She is survived by her brother, Daniel Benjamin.

(Alabama) and a doctorate in vet-erinary science at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Mr. Isenstein worked for the U.S. Department of Agriculture from 1955 until retirement in 1990 as a research biologist in parasitology, first at Auburn Uni-versity and from 1968 until 1990 at the Beltsville Agricultural Re-search Center.

He was a member of the American Society of Parasitolo-gists of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a past president of the Hel-minthological Society of Wash-ington, D.C.

Following retirement, he vol-unteered as a publications re-searcher in aquaculture at the National Agricultural Library and as a docent in human origins at the National Museum of Natural History. Other volunteer work included the Smithsonian Cham-ber Music Society and, for 20 years, the Smithsonian Resident Associates Program.

Services will be private. His family is hosting a memorial lun-cheon on December 13 at 12:30 p.m. at Riderwood Village Town Center at 3140 Gracefield Road, Silver Spring. Friends and col-leagues are invited to come and share their memories of Bob. Call 301-328-0844 before No-vember 26 to make reservations.

Donations in his memory can be made to the Hebrew Home for Greater Washington, 6121 Montrose Road, or the Jewish Federation of Greater Washington, 6101 Montrose Road, both in Rockville, MD 20852.

Robert S. Isenstein

Robert (Bob) Selig Isenstein, Ph.D., 81, died October 21, 2014, at his home from prostate cancer. He lived at Riderwood Village in Silver Spring with his wife, Margaret (Peg) Clymer Isenstein. They married on December 18, 1959.

In addition to his wife he is survived by two sons, Mark David and Neal Stuart (wife Anna C. Tucker). The Isenstein family moved to Greenbelt in 1968, living on Northway. They were members of Mishkan Torah Congregation and both Mark and Neal attended North End Elemen-tary School. The family moved to Beltsville in 1978.

Mr. Isenstein was born in Bos-ton on April 17, 1933, to Joseph and Rose Isenstein. He attended Boston English High School and the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. He earned a master's degree from Auburn University

We were sorry to learn of the death of Margaret Benjamin who had been sick for some time.

We add our thanks to Prince George's County Councilmember Ingrid Turner for all of the at-tention she has given Greenbelt during her eight-year term.

Congratulations to the win-ners of Tuesday's election.

Send us your reports of new babies, awards and honors to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from neighbors in Greenbelt East and West. To send infor-mation for Our Neighbors email us at newsreview@verizon.net or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

Orphan Sunday

with Van Summers and Bettie Young, Worship Associates; and the Choir

Millions of children around the world are at risk.

Either one or both of their parents are gone; they lack access to education and health care; sometimes families are so poor they put children in institutions because they cannot feed them.

Many churches are observing Orphan Sunday this month to shed light on this topic and what can be done. What do our UU prin-ciples teach us to do about this problem?

This sermon topic was selected by Kathi Yu, who purchased it in the 2013 PBUUC Auction.

the third unsuccessful attempt to undo the county charter restriction. In Greenbelt the vote against this proposal was 56 percent as compared to a 44 percent vote in favor of the change. In the county, the margin of defeat was much smaller, with only 51 percent of the voters opposing the charter change.

Over 80 percent of Greenbelters supported all the other ballot questions except that only 70 percent supported reducing the number of newspapers in which the county places public notices from three to one.

Voters stand in line at the Community Center to cast their vote for Maryland Governor.

Precinct Differences

As usual, Precinct 21-6, Greenbelt Elementary School, proved to be the most conservative of the city’s five precincts with a 29 percent vote for Hogan, nine points above the 20 percent city average for Hogan. At 49 percent, this precinct also had the highest voter turnout of any city precinct.

The most liberal precinct, as measured by support for a Democrat governor, is Precinct 21-8, Springhill Lake Elementary School. It provided over 90 percent support for Brown. Unfortunately for Brown, that precinct also had the lowest voter turnout at 23 percent. This was also the only city precinct that supported repealing term limits by a vote of 230 for and 148 against.

Residents Cast Votes
For Maryland Governor

by Allene Abrahamian

Lines formed early at multiple Greenbelt polling stations on Tuesday, November 4, for the 2014 Gubernatorial Election. Many came to cast their vote in this year’s especially close race between Lieutenant Governor Anthony Brown, the Democratic candidate, and Larry Hogan, the Republican candidate.

At Greenbelt Elementary School, the station for Precinct 6, Valerie Duke was responsible for ushering voters to their respective booths. “It’s my first year,” said Duke of her position as a voting judge while beaming with pride. “There has been a very nice amount of people. It fluctuates. It was heavy between 7 to 11:30 a.m.,” said Duke.

The polling station expects more voters to come through once normal work hours are over around 5 p.m. “We do a count every three hours. We believe traffic will get heavy in a few hours,” said Duke.

As of 3 p.m., the precinct had 641 votes, according to Sandra Armstrong, the Chief Judge of Precinct 6. “We have pretty good numbers so far,” she said.

Not all spirits were high. Some voters voiced their unfavorable opinions. “I’m very upset with our leaders. I don’t like liars,” said Harriet Ginsburg, who usually votes Democrat, but decided against it this year.

At the Greenbelt Community Center for Precinct 3, numbers were also high. As of 3 p.m., there were 650 votes, which is about a sixth of the registered voters for the precinct, according to the chief judge, who preferred to remain unnamed.

As for the tight governor’s race this year, some were concerned over the possible outcome. “It makes me a little nervous,” said Veronica Thomas. She brought her daughter, a first time voter, along to show her the importance of elections.

At Springhill Lake Elementary School, the polling station for Precinct 8, the number of voters was low. As of 5 p.m., the precinct had only 223 voters.

“Turnout has been fair,” said Carol Malveaux, chief judge of Precinct 8. She blames the lower turnout on the fact that “the community changes a lot.”

“It is getting better than it was before. We hope to double that number next time based on voter education,” said Malveaux.

Weird Karma, Happy Day!

by Jim Link

On a perfect Indian summer day, October 18, the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department held an open house to thank the citizens of Greenbelt and the city councilmembers for their crucial help in acquiring a spanking new fire engine.

Posing beside the sleek red and silver beauty, Mayor Emmett Jordan and Councilmembers Judith Davis, Leta Mach, Silke Pope, Edward Putens and Konrad Herling – flanked by Chief Thomas Ray and firefighters – accepted a plaque presented to them by Kelly Lawson, public information officer for the fire department. The plaque expressed the fire department’s gratitude to the councilmembers and the whole Greenbelt community; it will be hung in the Community Center.

A bizarre chain of events – weird karma indeed – led to this happy day. The old engine, new in 1999, died in the line of duty over Labor Day Weekend in 2012. Responding to an auto wreck on the beltway, parked at a 45-degree angle near the damaged cars, with barrier protection around it, the noble old gal was rammed by a drunk driver. In a sort of rough justice, that drunk driver was immediately rammed by another one.

Think your job is tough? Think of the courage and poise our firefighters have in order to work through such peripheral stress.

The old engine was totaled. “It would have cost more to fix it than to replace it,” Lawson explained. “Greenbelt launched a fundraising drive, our citizens responded generously and our city council moved some money around in the budget. We could never have gotten this wonderful vehicle without their help.”

The price tag for the fire department’s new baby is $500,000, with plenty of bells and whistles. “It’s state of the art,” Lawson continued. “It has a foam tank, for example, as well as a water tank.” Certain fires cannot or should not be doused with water but rather with foam, Lawson explained to your intrepid reporter.

Squirting a fire hose, jumping on the Moon Bounce trampoline and clambering onto the new engine thrilled kids at the open house. Free hot dogs and soft drinks and a bake sale thrilled the older folks.

Firefighters John Dutton and Nick Lasick helped kids squirt a powerful stream of water at a mock fire. Mateo Oudemans, age 7, said that squirting the hose was “pretty cool.”

Dutton’s mother Elaine said “My son is too modest to tell you, but John is a fourth generation firefighter here.”

Lasick said “My grandfather was a firefighter; my dad is one too, elsewhere. And there’s me.” Lasick lives at the fire house rent free, but that’s no bargain. He and his fellow residents pay a high price answering risky emergency calls.

Firefighter Jennifer Benton let kids use the Moon Bounce trampoline after showing them how to “Stop, Drop and Roll” on a nearby mattress to avoid fires.

Chief Ray actually set a fire to demonstrate how to use a fire extinguisher to douse it. Very scary and impressive.

Board of Education Member Peggy Higgins came out to celebrate the hard work of the GVFD. “I see the fire department in my neighborhood (Windsor Green) at least twice a month, day or night,” she said.

Sparky, the firefighting mascot, whose identity is a guarded secret, according to Firefighter Wedmar Desir, was also on hand.

Barry Bordas graciously regaled me with some of the fire department’s history. Bordas is a 42-year veteran of the GVFD; his father James was a vet of 48 years and his mom Pauline has been active in the ladies auxiliary for 60 years.

While showing its gratitude to the city, our fire department also displayed its tradition, courage and professionalism.

Indelible Impact

Jordan concluded by saying Turner has had “an indelible impact on this community. I don’t know how we’ll get along without you.” On behalf of the council and residents of Greenbelt, he presented her with a replica of Lenore Thomas’s Mother and Child statue, a feature of Roosevelt Center, in appreciation for her service. Turner graciously turned the compliment around. “Those were all of our accomplishments,” she said. She added that she had been able to achieve these things with the city council and staff, as well as with the citizens and organizations of Greenbelt, all working together. She said it had been a “fantastic eight years and a true partnership. It was a pleasure to be a part of it.”

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department, <http://www.greenbeltmd.gov/police/index.htm>, link in left frame to "Weekly Report" or http://www.greenbeltmd.gov/police/weekly_report.pdf. Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robbery
October 19, 4:10 p.m., Gard-enway near the Spellman Over-pass. A young man reported that he and two friends were walking when they were approached by two males, one armed with what appeared to be a handgun and the other with a knife. They announced a robbery and after property was taken from the person who reported the crime, the robbers fled. Both are de-scribed being black, 5'9" tall, 130 pounds. One was described as wearing a black jacket, cam-ouflage pants, red and white sneakers and a ski-type mask, with the other wearing a gray jacket and a ski-type mask. The other two people with the per-son reporting the crime have not come forward. The investigation is continuing.

Arrest
October 23, 8:12 p.m., 5800 block Cherrywood Lane. Two nonresident men, one 32 year old and the other 30, were both arrested and charged with first degree assault, second degree assault, disorderly conduct and disorderly intoxication after they allegedly threatened a woman with a metal pipe. The 32-year-old man allegedly displayed what the victim believed to be a hand-gun. Both men were arrested on the scene. The 30-year-old man was transported to Doctors Com-munity Hospital after complaining about difficulty breathing and was treated and released. Both men were then transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

October 24, 5700 block Cherrywood Lane. A 13-year-old Greenbelt youth was petitioned for trespass and failure to obey a lawful order after he was ob-served on the grounds of the Shell FoodMart after having been banned from the store by agents of the property. The youth, who is known to the officer, fled the scene on foot.

DWI/DUI
October 25, 2:30 a.m., 7500 block Hanover Parkway. A 38-year-old Greenbelt man was arrested and charged with alcohol and traffic-related charges during the investigation of a traffic ac-cident. He was released on cita-tions pending trial.

Counterfeit Money
October 23, 11:59 p.m., 6460 Capitol Drive. Counterfeit mon-ey was passed at the T.G.I. Fri-day's Restaurant.

Theft
October 23, 4:38 p.m., 6000 block Greenbelt Road. An unat-tended wallet was taken at Party City.

October 26, 8:45 p.m., 99 Centerway. An unattended cell phone was taken at the Youth Center.

Burglary
October 25, 9:30 p.m., 6100 block Breezewood Court. A woman heard a noise coming from her balcony, looked out and saw someone climbing down from the balcony. It was then discovered that a bicycle kept there was missing. A short time later a family friend located the bicycle in the 5900 block Green-belt Road and returned it to the woman.

Vandalism
October 23, 9:45 a.m., Branchville Road near Greenbelt Station Parkway. Equipment at a con-struction site was vandalized.

October 23, 2:12 p.m., 5900 block Cherrywood Terrace. The bedroom window of a residence was broken.

October 26, 7 p.m., 6200 block Springhill Drive. The bed-room and living room windows of a residence were broken by rocks.

Vehicle Crime
A silver 4-door 2002 Lexus ES300 with Md. tags 6BR6929 was stolen on October 24 from 6200 block Springhill Court.

There was an attempt to steal a vehicle from the 5700 block Greenbelt Metro Drive on Octo-ber 28.

Three thefts from autos in-volved breaking windows to gain access: 100 block Westway (in-dash media center, other stereo equipment and a backpack), Man-dan Road near Hanover Parkway (notebook-type computer) and 6200 block Breezewood Drive (CD player).

Other thefts from autos in-cluded 9200 block Springhill Lane (side-view mirrors), 9100 block Edmonston Road (dealer tag, Md. 1A88325) and 5700 block Greenbelt Metro Drive (registra-tion plate).

Vandalism was reported in the following locations: 7800 block Mandan Road (broken windshield), 9300 block Ed-monston Road (tire was cut), 7900 block Mandan Road (paint was scratched) and 9300 block Edmonston Terrace (an unknown substance was poured into the gas tank, damaging the engine).

Literacy Day Excitement At Magnolia Elementary

by Shari Cornell

Students and teachers at Mag-nolia Elementary School celebrated reading with a Literacy Day Parade on October 24. Each class chose a featured book to study and bring to life. This historical enactment was created through original and handmade costumes from a variety of different books. Some titles of books that were represented included: The Wizard of Oz, The Cat in the Hat, Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, Charlotte's Web and Pocahontas. Classes represented plots of the books, had Readers Theatre and sang songs. Parents were invited to come observe their children in the parade. Parents also assisted with designing banners and read to classes. It was a fun and edu-cational day celebrating literacy!

Comments on Election

Friday, November 14, 2014, 7:30 pm

Greenbriar Community Building

Our club worked hard for the Democrats and Lt. Governor Brown. So we will discuss what worked and didn't work for Brown. What will the impact be for our community regardless of the results? We'll also discuss the U.S. Senate and Congressional elections and the impact on our country.

So come, enjoy good food, company and political discussion.

50 Years Ago . . . Johnson Defeats Goldwater

by Tom Jones

Excerpts selected from the News Review online archive. The following are front-page excerpts about the election 50 years ago from November 5, 1964.

In keeping with the national and state trend, Greenbelt voters gave a landslide victory to incumbent President Lyndon B. Johnson in Tuesday’s balloting. The Johnson-Humphrey ticket received 2,633 votes to 1,053 for the Goldwater-Miller slate. About 79 percent of the 4,694 eligible votes in Greenbelt cast ballots.

President-elect Johnson’s majority of 71.4 percent was markedly better than the 61.7 percent majority given John F. Kennedy in 1960, when the Democratic Presidential victor polled 1,748 votes against Richard E. Nixon’s (sic) 1,087 votes in Greenbelt.

In the same edition:
On page 1:
City Manager James Giese reported receipt of a letter from the State Roads Commission, authorizing installation of a traffic light at the auto-snarled intersection [of Greenbelt and Edmonston Roads]. The commission estimated the cost of installation at $5,500....What the commission did NOT say was who shall pay for the installation. Council’s reaction was “Let’s get the light installed and determine later who has to pay for it.” This light has since been obliterated by the expanded intersection between Greenbelt Road and Kenilworth Avenue.

Council also took strong exception to the Halloween vandalism at High’s Dairy Store in the Center. A window was broken, and two swastikas and a Star of David were painted on the storefront.

The Woman’s Club announced “The regular monthly meeting will be held November 12 in the Greenbelt Community Church Social Room. Featured at the meeting will be a demonstration of party foods by a representative of the Washington Gas Light Company.

A panel discussion on Equal Pay for Equal Work will be held at the meeting of the College Park Branch of the American Association of University Women.

MAD Annual Fall Musical is Fanny

NASA Music and Drama Club’s (MAD) annual fall musical is “Fanny” with book by S. N. Behrman and Joshua Logan and music and lyrics by Harold Rome. It’s playing this year at the Charis Center for the Arts, 13010 8th Street, Bowie, while Goddard’s Recreation Center is closed for renovation. Due to limited space there will be no dinner but light refreshments only.

Greenbelt residents involved in the show include Mary Lou Fisher (assistant director), Tommy Zanner (lighting designer), Glen Harris (bass) and Mairead Alexander and News Review staffers Anne Gardner and Helen Sydavar (violinists).

The story of “Fanny,” set in Marseille, France, follows Marius and Fanny, who are deeply in love but torn apart by the temptation and excitement of the sea. Years later the star-crossed lovers are reunited. But everything has changed.

Find out what happens at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays. The last performance will be November 22. For ticket sales and more information contact 240-475-8800 or go to madtheater.org.

Fall Bonsai Exhibit

Through November 10 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the U.S. National Arboretum will offer a free exhibit on Autumn Bonsai: The Colors of Nature. Enjoy bonsai in their brilliant autumnal colors before the leaves fall away to reveal the trees’ bare winter silhouettes. Bright red maples, glowing gold ginkgos and trees with fall fruit will be on formal display in the Special Exhibits Wing of the National Bonsai and Penjing Museum.

MakerSpace Activities

The MakerSpace’s Banned Book Club meets once a month on the third Thursday from 6:15 to 7:15 pm. On November 20, we will meet to discuss the book, The Fault in our Stars, by John Green. The story is narrated by a 16-year-old cancer patient named Hazel Grace Lancaster, who is forced by her parents to attend a support group where she subsequently meets and falls in love

The book club is open to teens ages 12 and up. Parents should know we are not afraid to cross lines in our discussions.

Last month we held a popular gaming workshop for parents and teachers. We continue to develop the role of games in education, teaching kids how to explore and be creative in the wonderful world of Minecraft. Using a special educational version of the game, we will meet Tuesday evening, 8 to 9 p.m., starting November 18 and ending December 30.

For more information on events, please check online at makerspace125.org/calendar, or drop in to visit us at 125 Centerway in Roosevelt Center next to the movie theater.

Trunk or Treat!

by Jim Link

One of the many imaginative Halloween celebrations scattered throughout Greenbelt flourished in the 65 Court of Ridge Road. Lauren Cummings and Gretchen Schock choreographed a Trunk or Treat with a big boost from Julie Magness, Kathy Merritt, Vanderlei Martins and other court residents.

The celebrants placed bowls of candy in the open trunks of their decorated cars for the itinerant costumed kiddies to glean from. This self-serve tactic circumvented the need to knock on or answer doors and freed the adults to nosh and schmooze as they admired each others' costumes and the passing parade of ninja warriors, fairy princesses, ghosts, goblins, witches and angels.

For a few magical hours our cars were candy-dispensing cornucopias—an Aladdin's Castle, a Spy Hideout, a Hogwarts Castle, a Witches Cave. Warmed by two fire pits, we ate hot dogs, toasted marshmallows, actually had adult conversations, reveled in the delight of kids gathering plunder and deepened our friendships.

"We should do this again next year!" suggested one anonymous will not determine what improvements will be included in the HIP beyond replacement items. That will be determined by the members at a special membership meeting early next year. It is likely the board will ask members to approve some of these improvements for all members while permitting members to opt-in or opt-out of others.

Recommendations presented by the Buildings Committee and HIRL are based on the results of a multi-phase pilot program underway since November 2010, along with analysis of the cost and effectiveness of the tested improvements. Three members of the board are also members of the Buildings Committee: Steve Skolnik, Chuck Hess and Ed James.

But, as Director Bill Jones noted, the pilot study did not find the hoped for improvement that would reduce energy costs by so much it would pay for itself in short order. The main improvements have been to improve comfort, not to lower costs.

Insulation in Block Homes

The block homes have no in-wall insulation and the walls provide an R-value of just 2.5 to 3. In a member survey, block home residents complained of high electric bills and being cold in their homes. However, the only proposed improvement the Buildings Committee found cost effective was the installation of bathroom fans addressing the moisture problems experienced in many block homes since the installation of new windows during the previous rehabilitation project.

Several board members expressed disappointment at the paucity of improvements being offered for the block units beyond what is covered by the replacement reserves.

Unlike the Buildings Committee, HIRL recommended insulating the outside walls of the block units. HIRL's proposed approach of two to three inches of insulation covered by siding would take the R-value up to 12, compared to modern building standards of R-19. Insulation on the interior of the homes was deemed infeasible due to extensive member disruption and reduction in interior space. However, the estimated cost of the HIRL's proposed approach is over $15,000 per unit, which the Buildings Committee deemed cost prohibitive and with a low return in terms of energy savings.

Some board members were open to permitting members to install exterior insulation meeting GHI specifications at their own cost; however, this would need to be done on a row-by-row basis.

Exhaust Fans

Both the Buildings Committee and HIRL recommended installation of a through-the-wall fan. HIRL recommended that it be fitted with a timer device while the Buildings Committee suggested the option of a timer. The committee gave the fans a positive rating for comfort and a negative rating for energy savings and for preserving historic character and aesthetics.

The estimated cost of each fan, including installation, is $1,300. Jones pointed out that cutting through the wall is a major portion of the cost. Director Aaron Marcavitch suggested looking at a better quality system due to the extent of moisture penetration that would occur in the block homes.

Director Sue Ready said that there are other, less expensive ways to solve moisture problems in the block homes. She uses a box fan in the window and opens a window downstairs. However, Jones, Marcavitch and Hess called for mandating the fans to protect the buildings.

Windows

The board then took a brief detour into the issue of windows. Replacement with GHI standard windows will be covered by the replacement reserves. However, Hess noted that the pilot program gave members the option to install more expensive casement (crank) windows. He asked whether GHI should offer members an option for casement windows. If so, should there be any restrictions on where casements could be installed? There was also brief mention of optional casements that looked more like the original 1937 windows. All board members who addressed this issue supported offering the option. Other issues raised included whether members could have both casement and sliders in their homes and whether GHI should make casements the standard for kitchens, where it is difficult for members to reach the locking mechanism to open sliding windows.

Insulation

There were also differences among the board regarding the insulation recommendations for the brick (actually frame units with a brick veneer) and frame units. HIRL estimated the existing insulation in both building types as having an R-value of 16 compared with the current recommended minimum of R-38.

They recommended installing a layer of blown insulation over the entire ceiling area, on top of any wood flooring. In addition, the wall-top plates would be sealed with spray foam, they said, and air sealing gaskets would be installed at the attic hatches.

HIRL suggested an option to install a storage area of 192 feet. The board voted to increase this area to the full length of the attic and to a width where the roof rafters are within two feet of the attic floor.

Based on its cost-benefit analysis, the Buildings Committee recommended sealing the wall-top plates and the insulating gaskets, but not further insulating the attics, except at the member's option and expense.

The board members who expressed an opinion were split on this item. Hess agreed with the Buildings Committee, noting the "rather significant cost" for the extra insulation and the feasibility of installing it on a unit-by-unit basis.

Skolnik disagreed, saying a full program of attic insulation is important for comfort, energy efficiency and saleability. Jones also favored the HIRL recommendation. Ready favored the HIRL approach but, given the cost difference, said that the committee's approach was acceptable.

Bath Fans

Although installation of fans in the brick and frame units would not involve cutting through concrete block, the costs were actually higher for these units, with an estimated per unit cost of $1,832. Instead of through-the-wall fans, both HIRL and the Buildings Committee recommended venting the fans through the roof, with caveats that ductwork in the attic be insulated and properly sealed, that the contractor must have experience working with the shingle roofs (for frame homes) or slate roofs (for brick homes) and that the hood of the fan be designed to prevent entry by animals and insects.

All board members who spoke expressed discomfort at venting through the roofs. Earlier, there had been discussion of venting through the soffits (the vented area under the overhang of the roof). It appears, however, that such an approach risks damage of the buildings' structure.

Marcavitch said he didn't want to punch more holes in the walls but he also didn't want to go through the roof. If GHI can't vent through the soffits, he preferred venting through the wall.

Jones and Hess were also against going through the roof, though Hess said he was less concerned with going through the frames' shingle roofs.

Jones and Marcavitch spoke against mandating bathroom fans for the brick and frame homes, which have not experienced the same level of moisture problems as the block homes. Hess also saw the fans as less necessary for these units. The frame homes may also pose greater challenges in location, he said, as the shower is often against the exterior wall.

Frame Wall Insulation

The committee recommended that insulated vinyl siding be installed over a Tyvek wrap on the frame homes, although this is a tentative recommendation pending energy modeling by HIRL and obtaining cost estimates. HIRL recommended the installation of exterior insulation in a manner similar to that in the block homes. The Buildings Committee, however, did not consider that cost effective.

As with the block units, members desiring to apply exterior insulation, instead of the insulated siding the committee had recommended, could do so at their own cost. All units in a row, however, would need to make the same choice because of differences in the thickness of the two treatments.

Director Diana McFadden noted that better insulation would help members withstand a prolonged winter power outage. Marcavitch preferred exterior insulation over insulated siding, citing the need to make the frames tighter. There were several references during the discussion of wind coming through the frame units' walls. Marcavitch favored presenting the exterior insulation as mandatory and finding ways to cover the cost. But, it was pointed out, thickening the walls presents new challenges for window installation.

Ready suspected that the wind problems were really with the windows rather than with the walls. She wondered if an extra inch of insulation was worth the cost.

Hess questioned why GHI should pay almost the same cost for half the R-value by picking the insulated siding over the exterior insulation.

Even with the Building Committee's recommendation, only the siding would be covered by the replacement reserves, not the wrap and insulation.

Crawl Spaces

One of the planned components of the HIP will not be put before members at the special membership meeting. The original plan was to insulate the crawl spaces below the homes.

However, the proposed approach of spray foam insulation proved problematic. In some pilot homes, electrical junction boxes, wiring and piping were encased in foam. GHI staff were also concerned about their ability to replace or repair damaged insulation (such as after maintenance activities). They worried as well about the difficulty in drying out structural framing after a water leak.

Over and above the difficulties in insulating the crawl space was the level of disrepair found in the crawl spaces. Only 38 percent of the existing insulation in the pilot frame rows is completely intact, according to a report by GHI's former director of maintenance Matt Berres. A fifth of the rows have at least 10 percent of their insulation missing or fallen out of place.

Buildings Committee Member Richard Menis reported that in the 20 frame rows that were recently inspected by GHI staff, 80 percent of the crawl space sump pumps are inoperable, despite GHI policy that pumps be inspected every three to five years. GHI General Manager Eldon Ralph doubted that the crawl space inspections were being done properly, given the conditions found by the Buildings Committee and GHI staff during the pilot.

The number of sump pumps has significantly increased over time with damage to swales and other passive drainage systems. Other problems include animal infiltration, the presence of unused piping, damage caused during repairs and installation of telecommunications cables, as well as issues with water supply and waste water pipes.

Ready noted, the task force has identified big problems in the crawl spaces that will require a lot more research. There is much work to be done in the crawl spaces, she said, before GHI can work on improving them.

In the board's September 18 response to the Buildings Committee, Skolnik said there was general consensus that the crawl space insulation should be addressed as a deferred maintenance item for all unit types, rather than as part of the HIP.

Costs

All costs in the reports and this article are estimates. Hess noted that until GHI goes through the contract process, it will not know how accurate these estimates are and whether the replacement reserves are adequate to cover all they are expected to at this point.
